The past decades have witnessed the development of internet and anyone can upload information to the Internet. Thus some people think most of what we read on the Internet are inaccurate. As for me, I think most information on the internet are reliable. Only some news may inaccurate because of artificial mistakes.

Reading news online is more convenient thanks to computerization and this also makes it easier for us to gain some firsthand news when things happening. Most people use smart phones and laptops today. So information can spread very fast. However, some news will become inaccurate though a large number of spreads. For example, after some disaster the death toll and money lost are always different and incorrect before official reports.

Compared to the traditional journalism, internet have so many advantages. For example, many commuters can keep up to date with what is happening throughout the world by checking online news when traveling by underground. It is also cheaper than traditional ways to get news. You do not have to spend money on newspapers or magazines. But the Internet is not like newspapers. It is hard to find news writers in real life, so some editors who is lacking responsibilities may make some mistakes when writing news.

From my perspective, information on the Internet is various, and it can write by anyone. Though it may not accurate like official reports or newspapers, it also have some value to read. In conclusion, we have to read information with critical thinkings.
