

much much better !

there is a controversial issue that the government invest to art. Many people think that art is a top priority rather than public services and facilities. But many people are supposed. Personally, two prespectives are reasonable.

There is no doubt that arts are indispensable for our daily life, sometimes bringing positive effects. For example, museums are normally landmarks of cities, which can present the culture of these cities and attract citizens to enjoy those exhibits. It is beneficial to gaining insight into local history. Meanwhile, developing arts can protect local cultural heritages, it is important to develop ancient ciivilizations.

But many people are more attention whether themselves' living standard has improved, because public facilities were built, which can improve citizens' living , such as water conservancy facilities, construct highways.

Meanwhile, compared with invest in arts, there are more significantly effective to invest in public services, because when the living standard has improved, people naturally pursue art.

Therefore, the government should rational investment.

叫你不要写从句非要一个句子写这么多从句，写得这么长根本就忘了语法这回事
