

In many cities, planners tend to arrange shops, schools, offices, and homes in specific areas and separate them from each other. Do you think the advantages of this policy outweigh the disadvantage?

Nowadays many cities are divided into different zones. Shops, schools, offices, homes are distributed in different positions. In my opinion, zoning has a positive effect on residential daily life.

Building some public facilities out of city center can ease traffic pressure, which can reduce traffic congestion. This can increase the quality of life of many city dwellers because many people can reduce commuting time. People can have more time to relax and enjoy their free time.

Building some offices in specific areas are beneficial to work efficiency. People can finish their work in a short time within walking distance, which can make work more efficient and reduce the cost of transport.
