

Describe a time that a child did something that made you laugh
You should say
When this happened
Who the child was
What the child did
And explain why it was funny

Ok right then, well the time I'm going to talk to you about was when my son, who's only, like, two and a half years' old, said something that really made me laugh. And not just me, but everyone around me at the time, cos it was absolutely hilarious, as I'll explain in a moment.

Anyway, as for when it happened, um... well I suppose it was, like, two or three weeks ago, so it was pretty recently. And basically what he did was say, in Chinese, “唉呀妈呀!” which kind of translates in English as “Oh my god!” or something along those lines. And um, as I said, everyone around who heard it just burst out laughing, because none of us expected him to say that, you know, it was completely out of the blue!

I mean, it's not something you would expect a child of that age to say, so it was a complete surprise for us to hear him say that. I guess he must have just heard us saying it at some stage and picked it up. And, what also made it so funny was the fact that he said it exactly the same way an adult would, you know, with the feeling and intonation and everything! So it was incredibly funny, and even he laughed after seeing our reaction!

Um..., what else is there is to say? Uh... that's pretty much it I guess. But you know, I just find it amazing how well he picks up on the things we say, especially when it seems that he's not even paying attention, but he's actually taking everything in. So yeah, I think it just goes to show that children are a lot more intelligent than they look!

Notes:

Like - 表示思考下面的话或用作口头禅 (often said before numbers in spoken English)

hilarious - 笑死了

something along those lines - 类似的话

burst out laughing - 突然大笑起来

it was completely out of the blue - 很突然, 出乎意料

at some stage - at some time

intonation - 语调

that's pretty much it I guess - 差不多就这样!

taking everything in - 吸收一切

it just goes to show - 这恰恰证明...

Other useful phrases:

I never get bored in his company.

Whenever I'm with him, he always makes me laugh.

He has done a lot of other amusing things as well, but this one, for me, was definitely the most funny.