• Is traveling popular among Chinese people?

- Yeah, absolutely. Traveling is extremely popular in China. Many people travel domestically, and a growing number of Chinese people travel internationally. For example, it's not uncommon to find large numbers of Chinese tourists in European travel destinations like London, Paris, Milan and so on. Traveling abroad allows people to get exposed to new experiences and different attitudes to life, which is what many young people desire. Like ... when we go to Italy, we might see a much slower and gentler way of life. Plus, traveling also helps us forget the stresses of everyday life.

- What are the benefits of globalization?

- Well, globalization has indeed brought a wide range of benefits, like ...
- One aspect that is easy to think of is the increased access we now have to products from other countries, which makes our lives more interesting and enjoyable.
- McDonald's and Pizza Hut can be found almost everywhere, and authentic Chinese food is increasingly popular in many countries.
- Plus, it's become extremely easy for people to travel, study and work abroad now.

- But at the same time, globalization has led to some problems too, especially in the area of employment, I think.
- What I mean is that since people can work in other countries, it's made it more difficult for the locals to find work, leading to frustration and even anger among the local population.

- How has the education system evolved in recent years?

- In China, it seems that there haven't been many significant changes in our education system.
- Exams have always played a large role in our education, which means most students study hard every day just in order to get good grades.
- As you probably know, gaokao, or the college entrance examination, is considered a determining factor for someone's future, so students prepare for years and years for it, memorizing information and learning exam techniques.

- But um, I believe there will be changes in the future because more and more people are becoming aware of the downsides of gaokao, like ...
- many students don't have practical skills, and also the pressure poses risks to these young people's health.
- I do hope that there will be changes.

- What makes a person truly happy?

- Haha, that's a very hard question BECAUSE if we knew what makes a person truly happy, we would all be happy.
- Everybody talks about happiness, it's many people's goal in life, but it seems that very few are truly happy.
- ...

- How important are the first few years of a child's life?
- Honestly, I have no idea, BECAUSE ... um, I think it's obvious ... I'm only 20 and I haven't thought about anything related to raising kids. In fact, I will try my best not to have kids.
- If the answer to this answer were "very important", I would try even harder not to have children. If I had kids, I would have to work extremely hard to make sure that they had a good life. It would be too much pressure for me.

- What's the best way to quit smoking?
 - God, I really don't know. I guess there's no such thing as the best way to quit smoking, BECAUSE it's really difficult to break out of any addiction, and whatever method it's used, it's not enough. Willpower is the most important, I believe.

- as for .../in terms of .../when it comes to ...
- what I can think of right now is/are ...
- one ... that comes to mind is ...
- one ... I can think of now is ...
- nowadays; in this day and age
- it's true that ...
- ... is indeed a serious issue
- many people are talking about ... on social media
- I've read online that ...; I've seen on TV that ...
- ...

- Do you think it's important to teach children about diversity and inclusion?
- Well, let me think about it.
- Diversity and inclusion are some social issues that are becoming increasingly important in today's world, and people talk about them a lot on social media, especially on western social media.
- Like ... for example, the US is a country with a lot of immigrants; people living there come from all parts of the world, so it's definitely very important for kids to learn about diversity and inclusion from a young age as it will be something that they will have to deal with almost every day. In China, I think it's also important, but perhaps not as important as in those immigrant countries.

- In many countries, young people are struggling to find employment despite having university degrees. What can be done to address it?
- Well ... yeah, this is a very important issue that affects many young people in different parts of the world. If you think about it, most people go to university in order to find a job that pays well.
- I remember when we were preparing for the college entrance examination, our teachers told us that if we worked hard, we would be able to attend good universities, find decent jobs, and live a good life.
- However, it seems that there are too many university graduates now and not enough jobs. Well, perhaps it'll be more and more common for those with a university degree to do manual work in the future, which wasn't very popular before.

- Why do some people think that technology is making their lives more complicated?
- Okay, um ... this is an interesting question because, in fact, most people like to talk about the positive effects of technology and how much they like it.
- But it's true that some people might not like modern technology that much. So ... let me think of an example.
- The only thing that comes to mind is smartphones. There are many apps nowadays, not only those that we download ourselves, but also ones that are already there when we get a new phone. Many elderly people definitely find it hard to learn to use all of them. In fact, although I'm pretty young, there are apps on my phone that I never open.
